STATE SUNSHINE AND SHADOW.

— Maude Gough, a little girl of Henderson, was fatally burned by striking a match upon her dress.

— Bell county has seventy lawyers. There were nearly 1,200 cases on the docket of the last Circuit court.

— Citizens of Dixon, Webster county, have warned all sellers of whisky to leave the town, and most of them have left.

— The postmaster at Henderson has been notified that the free delivery system will go into effect there November 1.

— In the Richmond Circuit court Wm. Wilder was sent to the penitentiary for six years for the murder of Daniel Warren.

— A fight took place at Middlesborough between George Woodruff and William King, in which the latter was fatally wounded.

— David Evans, while walking along the road a short distance from his home, near Farmers, was shot from ambush and seriously, if not fatally, wounded.

— The average cost of the children in the Masonic Home at Louisville is $114.09 annually. The institution has an endowment fund of $176,262.94.

— Edward Barrow, a well known married drummer of Louisville, was publicly censured in Armony, Miss., by a woman who claimed that he had insulted her.

— The Richmond Waterworks company have stocked their reservoir with 6,500 young fish principally bass of various kinds, and in a few years great fishing is expected.

— The law passed by the last legislature requiring the counties to sell $20 of the $75 per annum allowed for each paid period is working a large saving to the State treasury.

— Logan Murphy was taken to Mt. Sterling jail last week by J. W. Brown, sheriff of Magoffin county, for safe keeping until January 8, 1892, the day set for his execution.

— Miss Fannie Robinson, of Pleasure Henry county, has sued Luther C. Stapleton, of Shelby county, for $10,000 damages for breach of promise. She is 25 years of age, and he is 62.

— The grand jury of Mason county has found five indictments against the Mayville Fair association and four against the Germantown Fair association, one for each day of the respective fair, for allowing gambling on the grounds.

— A young man named Fitch committed suicide by shooting himself at his home in Lewis county. The sad affair so preyed upon the mind of his mother, Mrs. Wm. Fitch, that she became insane and has been taken to an asylum.

— Near Sebree, Christian county, a gambling house was raided by white caps, and three women and three men taken out and beaten severely, after which they were told to travel. Notices were then posted warning others to leave or share the same fate.

— The Court of Appeals recently decided the case of the Commonwealth vs. R. T. Scowden, charged with false swearing, and affirmed the decision of the lower court. Scowden was indicted for having sworn falsely while testifying before the grand jury in the celebrated Louisville granite cases. The indictment was thrown out on a decision of Judge Jackson, of Louisville, who held that the proceedings of a grand jury room were secret, and that a grand jury could not testify against a witness who swore falsely in the grand jury room. From this decision the Commonwealth appealed. The present decision affirms Judge Jackson and liberates Scowden from prosecution. It was read by Justice Holt.

The following would indicate that there is still hope for the paralyzed. Frank Cornelius, Purcell, Indiana, Ter., says: "I induced Mr. Pinson, whose wife had paralysis in the face, to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. To their great surprise before the bottle had been all used she was a great deal better. Her face had been drawn to one side, but the Pain Balm relieved all pain and soreness, and the mouth assumed its natural shape." It is also used for rheumatism, lame back, sprains, swellings and lameness. 50 cent bottles for sale by Ross & Swango.

If your hair is inclined to fall out and become thin use Hall's Hair Balsom.

"Seeing is Believing."

And a good lamp

must be simple; when it is not simple it is not good. Simple, Beautiful, Good—these words mean much, but to see "The Rochester" will impress the truth more forcibly. All metal, tough and seamless, and made in three pieces only, it is absolutely safe and unbreakable. Like Aladdin's of old, it is indeed a "wonderful lamp," for its marvelous light is purer and brighter than gas light, softer than electric light and more cheerful than either.

Look for the lamp—"The Rochester." If the lamp dealer hasn't the genuine Rochester lamp, send him our new illustrated catalogue, and we will send you a lamp safely by express, our choice of over 2,000 varieties from the "Largest Lamp Store in the World."

LACONIC LUNCHEON.

Garcia, but didn't that New Orleans bank cashier miss it by not taking $200,000 while he "had his hand in?"

Will Baby McKee be yanked, or the Cleveland kid get spanked in 1892? is a problem that both political parties are now trying to solve.

Lexington boasts of a mind-reader in the person of Madam Irving. Ginseng to gingersnakes that she can't tell what Henry Duncan and Hull Davidson think of each other privately.

Gov. Brown may have "no flies on him," but he is evidently afraid of fleas, as shown by the amount of "pennycandy" he has gathered about him. It is said to be rife good to "keep away the pesky little varmints."

Treachery of one whom you have befriended, and upon whom you have looked as a friend, is "the unkindest cut of all," even though he is a politician. But the saying, "eaten bread is soon forgotten," is as true as it is old.

As regards the late Chilian outbreak in which American sailors were assaulted in the streets of Valparaiso, our Benny is quoted as saying he will stand "no more monkey business," and it looks as if Southern Isle may feel a chill sensation along her spine unless she soon dances to the tune Uncle Sam is piping.

The ten negroes, convicted of the murder of Thornton Nance, and sentenced to hang at Laurens, S. C., Saturday last, were reprieved, pending an appeal to the Supreme court. The governor thereby missed "a ten strike," but perhaps a black premonition to this State prevented him from putting so many "black balls in the box" at one time! Eh?

The Frankfort Roundabout refers to Attorney General Gross as the "Refuser General," because that official did not allow the citizens of Frankfort pay for champagne and cut flowers furnished the soldiers of the Second regiment, recently encamped at that place, and intimates that the general did not tote fair with the merchants of that metropolis.

Garcia, the paying teller of the New Orleans National Bank, got away with $190,000 of the bank's money and "don't know how he did it," which reminds us of lad once arraigned for stealing watermelons. When questioned by his paternoster as to whether he had been in the patch an hour or so before, he replied, "Me might, but if me did me don't member of it."

We have all along maintained that Jim Jewell, of Lexington, is the smartest statesman in the State, and we have frequently quoted his celebrated axiom, "politics is h---," in proof of it. Now he makes another assertion equally true, "No politician could expect a newspaper to put him without pay, unless he's a d--- fool." The author of two aphorisms like these could not but be just, and with a glass of clear cold water we drink to his success as Recorder of the Lexington city court.

A story comes from Crab Orchard, this State, that a burning well has been discovered in Rockcastle county. It is said to be clear, cold, palatable, and without any odor whatever, yet a dipperful of it coming in contact with flame will take fire at once. Evidently Joe Mullholland has been let loose again, and coming in contact with a mounthine still has made the attempt to quench that ever burning thirst. Blowing his breath too strong he ignites the fluid, and forthwith "lays it on" the innocent moonshine. But the people know the "ear marks" of Joseph, even though he dress in "a coat of many colors."

In the excitement about the fast time trotting horses are now minkling it is well to remember that we have always advised our people to breed only to the best. B. Tracy, of Lexington, has just placed no under obligations for one of his handsome 400-page annual catalogues and in it we notice many of the Wilkes family of trotters, now so popular. Mr. Tracy's

Ashland Park stock farm is the place to get speed, whether you breed or buy, and we advise all who wish "a fast one" to write him and get a catalogue to select from. And, by the way, we note with pleasure that Barney last week won a running race at Lexington with his Irish Chief, three-fourths of a mile in the fast time of 1:15. The laurels could have fallen upon no better man, for Barney is himself an Irish Chief worthy the crown of success he is now enjoying.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23, 1891.
The return of Secretary Blaine furnished a Senator who loves to joke and who is a warm personal friend both of the Secretary and Mr. Garrison, an opportunity to raise a smile in a circle of congenial spirits this morning. He said, "Well, I am glad that Mr. Blaine's come home at last, and I hope that every time I go to the White House for a little chat with Ben I shall not be reminded of a verse in one of Bobby Burns' poems—
'My bonnie wa', at the close of day,
I heard a noise sing, that' his head it was gray,
And as he was singing the tears down came,
They'll never be laid till Jamie comes home."

Mr. Blaine's return is everywhere talked about, but beyond the bare fact to be obtained. Some say that he will only nominally resume the head of the State department, while others will do the work; but those who know the disposition of the mass know better than that; he isn't the sort of material of which figureheads are made. He will either take up his work with all the earnestness which characterized the first two years of his administration of the State department, or he will not take it up at all. It is said that his family would be pleased to have him resign the cares of official life, but for him to do that would be to practically announce himself as a Presidential candidate.

It is a noteworthy fact that although the Fifty-second Congress has not met for its first session there are already eight vacancies in its membership, three by resignation (all from New York) and five by death—Spokane, New York; Ford, Michigan; Gamble, S. Dakota; Houk, Tennessee, and Lee, Virginia. With the exception possibly of the Virginia vacancy, which has just occurred, these vacancies will all be filled.

The case of Boyd vs. Thayer, arising from a contest for the governorship of Nebraska, has been advanced on the docket of the United States Supreme court, and the first Monday in December has been assigned for its argument.

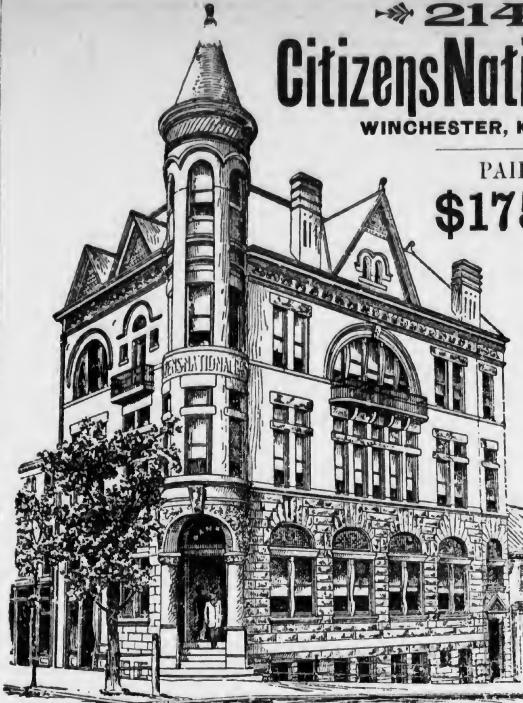

This is the way a personal friend who is a frequent and social visitor at the White House speaks of Mr. Garrison: "The President does not give any one an intimation in advance of his intentions in regard to appointments. I do not believe, and I have good reasons for saying it, that he even takes the members of his Cabinet into his confidence. He is one of the most non-committal men I ever saw." This style may not be satisfactory everybody, particularly those who believe themselves entitled to advance information, but it is a decided improvement upon that adopted by some other Presidents we have had of leaving people under the impression that their wishes were to be complied with, without exactly making a positive promise, while knowing that nothing of the kind was contemplated.

Maj. Gen. Schofield in his annual report to the Secretary of War, just submitted, devotes much space to the lessons taught by the Sioux Indian outbreak last winter, and recommends the addition of a few thousand men to the army so that a sufficient body of troops may at all times be kept in the vicinity of the great Indian reservations, thus removing all danger of uprising and saving a repetition of the enormous transportation expense to which the government was put last winter in the removal of troops from distant points to the scene of disorder. He says that satisfactory progress has been made in the construction of the gun factory at Watervliet, N. Y., and in the manufacture of type guns of the highest qualities. He says that the pulse of enlisting Indians in the army has been satisfactory as far as it has gone; but that was probably written before the latest reports were received from the officers engaged in recruiting Indians. These reports say that the Indians refuse to enlist in the Infantry branch of the service. The General fails to make any report of the Commander of the Army having taken to himself a young and lively wife during the year.

Do You Need Money?

If so, you can get something better than dollars from us. The completion of the K. U. R. R. to Jackson has cut us off from a large wholesale trade heretofore had by us in several counties east, and left on our hands an immense stock of goods, which we are compelled to unload, and in order to do so we are determined to make prices do the work, prices which will make our patrons happy and make competition howl. We offer to Country Merchants extra inducements, and guarantee them lower prices than they ever got before. We are overstocked and must unload. Remember we will ship anything by rail with freight added, either wholesale or retail, east or west, north or south, up hill or down. We are now receiving such lines, bought for cash at bottom bargains, as will fill every department. New, fresh, reasonable, choice and cheap. We can astonish you with covered with goods at half prices. As the prices we name merely give us a chance to get our money out of the goods, we cannot afford credit. Goods will be sold for cash.

We have opened a new department in the city, and will supply all kinds of Millinery, Furniture Goods, Wall Paper, Carpets and Oil Cloths, School Books and Supplies, Pictures and Frames, etc., etc. Miss Rawlings is a thoroughly competent Milliner and Dress Maker, and we offer you a City Stock to select from. The store house of G. W. Robinson is fast nearing completion. When finished it will add greatly to the appearance of our town.

Joshua Brashears and Miss Fannie Elkins were united in marriage Tuesday at the residence of the bride's father. May all their troubles be little ones.

Campbell can beat the world for pretty girls and dogs. There are about fifty as pretty girls in this quiet little town as ever made "footprints on the sands of time."

Granville Rose, of Stillwater, was in town Saturday shaking hands with the dear people. Several of our citizens thought he was Judge John E. Cooper, of Stillwater.

Miss Belle Steele, daughter of our countryman Dr. Wyley W. Steele, and one of Wolfe county's most efficient school teachers, was a guest of M. V. Potts Sunday night.

Samuel Faulkner and Miss Nannie Horton were united in marriage one day last week. Young, buoyant and loving, they have launched their bark upon life's tempestuous sea. May gentle gales attend them, clear skies bend o'er them, and all around and about them reign the peace that passeth understanding; may they have only enough of clouds to give them a bright, halloved, golden sunset.

Rev. Mr. Hawthorne preached a very entertaining and interesting sermon at the Presbyterian church in this place last Sunday. Mr. Hawthorne left Thursday morning for Wise county, Virginia, where he had been called to a church. He will be only about 30 miles from his home, and the situation will therefore be quite pleasant. In the short time Bro Hawthorne was with us he won many friends among all denominations and they regretted to see him depart. We wish him success in his new field of labor.

H. J. Bennett, representing Yankee Selp & Co., while here recently, sold some good bills. He doubted, however, their ability to produce anything equal to it in size.

HAZEL GREEN. I I I KY.

ORIGINAL GINGERBREAD RECIPE.

I've made a recipe, all my own,
And pray do I feel having done it,
As I'd achieved in grandiloquent tone,
An Heration odes, or a sonnet.
Thus: a cup and a half of milk thick and sour,
And a cup of sugar, and a cup of flour,
Not a cup, but two-thirds, molasses you pour,
(and now there must be no demurring!)
After the teatime, of course, the right,
The first must be stoned to perfection,
And into it there own taste be the gule.
Put ginger in friendly connection
With nutmeg, mace, and cinnamon; and also
Of salt, a spoonful, for his flavor.
And then into the rich liquid must go,
With two beaten eggs, that flavor
After the first taste, the others agree;
Of butter in melted condition,
Just one-half a cup; and the substance should

Like cake of a wholesome nutrition.
Then I'm sure'll how to the small boy who said:
"Oh this is just awfully good gingerbread!"

Cut-out-floor costumes were very becoming to Alice, also, and her beauty was too radiant with health to fear the sun. The sight of it might have been dangerous to Russell's peace of mind, except that he had no peace of mind during those days. The lack of money with which his personal expenses had been ever increasing his anxiety regarding the motor car; his fear lest Deering should hear of certain operations in the stock and should call a halt on the whole procession—all these considerations kept Russell in a condition unfavorable to love. Alice had conquered him only so far that he felt he was in general in the favor of society. The recognition of this fact by any young man is a symptom, but it may never lead to a proposal or to a reform. If Russell had considered the subject at all, he would have said at once that he could not permit himself to fall in love with Alice without gross treachery to his friend. But as yet he thought only that she oughtn't to be allowed to know it, and he had wondered that her brother should permit it.

"Old Ray must know the condition I'm in," thought Russell. "I wonder that he doesn't politely hint that I'd better stay away from his house. Suppose some crash should come and two or three of my creditors should combine to put me in jail. I would not be pleased for Miss Ray."

However, to his relief, that Ray should renew his invitations to the villa, Russell felt like an impator when he accepted them and at last he began to refuse, but as a rule the old millionaire would take the young man by the arm and walk him down to the yacht as if he were under arrest. Russell realized that he had won a place in the old fellow's affections, and this made him feel nearer than ever about his whole affair. It was possible that he did not know about Alice, Russell reflected. He might be blinded by prejudice in his favor; he might accept him because of Brown's assurances. Brown had been on the most intimate terms with the family in the days when the son whom Ray had lost had been a youth at college. Alice, only a little girl, at any rate he resolved, to get Ray, made a clean breast of the whole matter and give the old man a fair chance to kick over. If I could still retain the benefit of your counsel which you have often so kindly given me here in your office, it would be much more than I could reasonably expect. Though I have never been particularly successful in the jealous case which must be employed to guard one, I am a reckless fellow, pursuing a career of most uncertain lane, through ways which are not the best. It seems to me that I should never meet Miss Ray again. Perhaps for even mentioning her name."

"You're blue, young man," said Ray, "that's what's the matter with you."

"There's only one way out, right, right?"

"The first must be stoned to perfection,

And into it there own taste be the gule."

Put ginger in friendly connection

With nutmeg, mace, and cinnamon; and also

Of salt, a spoonful, for his flavor.

And then into the rich liquid must go,

With two beaten eggs, that flavor

After the first taste, the others agree;

Of butter in melted condition,

Just one-half a cup; and the substance should

Like cake of a wholesome nutrition.

Then I'm sure'll how to the small boy who said:

"Oh this is just awfully good gingerbread!"

AGRICULTURAL HINTS.

THE LEAF CRUMPLER.

A Descriptive Insect, Which May, However, He Kept in Check.
During the winter and spring months one often finds upon the twigs of various fruit trees many small, dry, brown leaves surrounded by a long, pale, silken tube. If one of these cases is carefully cut open it will be found to contain a brownish worm or caterpillar about half an inch long. This insect is the leaf-crumpler, and it often becomes one of the most injurious of orchard pests. The adult insect is a small, grayish moth that appears during June and July, and deposits eggs on the various trees that serve as food plants for the larva. These include the apple, quince, and possibly the peach, as well as both the wild and cultivated varieties of the cherry, plum and crab apple. From these eggs there soon hatch small brown worms that contract tubular, silken cases (Fig. 1) within which they remain concealed when not eating. As they grow larger they draw about the opening of their abodes many partially-eaten leaves, so that by autumn there is quite a bunch around the insect (Fig. 2). At the approach of cold weather the cases are attached to the twigs by means of silken threads, the larvae frequently gnawing a way the tender bark to insure a firm hold; and thus the winter is passed.

As soon in spring the leaves begin to appear the larvae attack them, frequently eating out flower buds as well. The front part of a larva is seen in Fig. 3. They are seen to be feeding upon leaves sometime in June, when they become pupa pupariæ within the cases. About a fortnight later the moths emerge, and thus the life cycle is completed. The perfect insect, is shown at Fig. 4, somewhat enlarged.

Fortunately there are several species of parasites that help to keep this insect in check. In young orchards the larval cases are easily picked off during winter. They may then be burned to what is probably better, carried to a considerable distance from their food plants, and left there to develop, allowing the parasites to develop and to escape. The leaf-crumpler larvae are also liable to destruction by spraying with paris green or London purple, and may easily be held in check in this way. In orchards regularly sprayed for the codling moth this, as well as other leaf-eating apple pests, will rarely prove troublesome. Not only should all the larval cases possibly be picked off during winter, but spraying should be commenced early also. The larvae are more easily and profitably destroyed while young and tender, and before they have done much damage to the leaves and flower buds. One great reason why fruit growers often fail to keep insect as well as fungus enemies in check is because they neglect the spraying until the harm is done.—American Agriculturist.

Preserving Dried Honey.

Under the ordinary plan of liquefying honey the product is sticky, something like molasses, having thickened in melting. But more than this, it has lost part of that fragrant aroma and exquisite taste which it before possessed. These important qualities can all be restored, according to British Bee Journal, by a simple process which consists in covering the honey about to be subjected to heat, with half an inch of cold water. The crust and the whole of the acid portion, if any, on top of the granulated honey, should be removed previous to plunging the cold water on. After melting there appears about the same quantity of water on top as when placed on at first. When the honey has been allowed to cool down, it is again covered with the water covering should be poured off. Honey that was originally clear, and has become thick and cloudy by being melted without the covering of water, will not alter, if melted again with it.

It is not too early to endeavor to impress upon the mind that if the cows are turned into the stalk fields this fall, without the utmost care, the usual number of dead cows will be the result.

This season will soon be here when the cow is compelled to stay out doors all night she will never give as much milk as she has been giving until the calves again.

It is at the holidays that the large, heavy turkeys sell the best; and other seasons a medium-weight will bring the best price per pound.

FEEDING FOR MILK.

Effect of Various Foods on Milk and Butter Production.

The experiments station at Geneva, N. Y., has been trying the effects of various foods upon milk and butter production. The bulletin says:

"While wheat bran has been a good mill producer, yet when fed without other grain it has been found inferior to corn meal, but in combination with other grain foods it has given better results than when fed alone. The butter was inferior to that produced on corn meal, being much lighter colored, not so good grain and containing a less percent of olein.

"Of all foods thus far experimented with, linsed meal proved itself the greatest butter producer. The milk yield invariably fell off when we substituted linsed meal for corn meal, though the linsed meal, thus produced, a larger yield of butter. In one experiment there was fed hay, corn meal and wheat bran with the following results: Milk per day, 20 lbs. 7 ozs.; milk for 1 lb. butter, 21.8 lbs.; butter per day, 15.4 ozs.; per cent. of water in butter, 12.7%. In the second period linsed meal was substituted for the corn meal, otherwise the ratios was the same as in the first period. Milk per day, 20 lbs. 1 oz.; milk per 1 lb. butter, 21.8 lbs.; butter per day, 15.4 ozs.; per cent. of water in butter, 12.5%. A slight falling off in milk, but 5 lbs. less will require for a pound of butter."

From experiments made the following conclusions are drawn: That the chemical composition of foods does not always show their relative feeding value to butter producers. That some grain foods increase the yield of milk without increasing the fat in the milk. That some foods stimulate the milk yield but increase the butter fats. That linsed meal produces less milk than corn meal, but more butter. That the butter produced under linsed meal feed contains an excess of olein, therefore is soft and oily. That the best butter was produced when a combination of several of these foods was fed together.

AMONG THE POULTRY.

An overgrown, excessively fat fowl is a nuisance.

A little stimulating food will not come amiss in mounting season.

You no turkeys will lay more eggs than old ones, but they will be smaller.

Young turkey hens are to be kept for breeding, select out the best of the earliest hatched.

The best table fowls are the games, Fochins, Houdans, Brahmans, Langshans, Wyandottes and Dominiques.

There is no difference in my respect between those matched in all respects and those which are not.

The best breeds for eggs are Leghorns, Minoras, Houdans, Spanish, Polands, Hamburgs and Andalusians.

You no geese that have not yet completed their growth should be fed liberally from now on until they are ready to market.

CABBAGE makes a good green feed for winter. All the small, unmarketable heads should be gathered up and stored away.

Young turkeys are kept in small yards, care must be taken to keep an even number. An odd male will cause continual trouble.

POULTRY of any kind intending to be dressed before sending to market should be kept from food for twenty-four hours before killing.

It is not a good plan to keep pullets and old hens in the same pens all together, as they do not require the same food and will do better separate.

Egg-normous hens or persistent cases of crop rarely pay for the trouble required to cure. The hatched in a majority of cases is the cheapest remedy.

HARD HARNESS HOOK.

One That Can Be Made from Strips of Wore Wagons Tires.

By far too many farmers, instead of hanging up their harness and collars when used, throw them upon the floor, across the wagon seat upon bouches, and if in the stable the chances are that they are temporarily thrown across the division between the stalls. All of this carelessness and shiftless way of doing business is easily avoided by having plenty of strong iron or wooden hooks placed in some convenient part of the wagon house. Always avoid hanging harness in the horse stable, as the tainted atmosphere destroys the grain of the leather, tarnishes the plated portions and mingles the whole sticky and disagreeable to handle.

In the accompanying illustration, sent by L. D. Snook, of Yates county, N. Y., the figures B and B II, represent a very good form of iron hooks, which can be easily made from strips of worn wagon tires. Place the rounded side up and screw them to a girder, or the building, or to a girl. The plain hooks, A A, are of either wood or iron and intended for the collars, as it is not best to hang the collars on the same hook with the bridle and harness, unless the hook be of extra length.—American Agriculturist.

Marvin's Great Race Against Time, at Stockton, Cal., Oct. 31.

On the above date Marvin redeemed his promise and put Sunol over the kite-shaped track at Stockton, Cal., beating the best time of Maud S. by a clean half second. The morning opened bright and sunny, with very little wind blowing. At 11 o'clock the temperature was 76 degrees and there was a light breeze blowing. Marvin left his hotel at half-past 6 o'clock for the track. He said he had made up his mind not to speed Sunol unless all the conditions were favorable, even if he got no show against time this season.

All through the afternoon it looked bad, but about 5 o'clock the wind died down and only a gentle breeze was felt. The track was in fine condition and Marvin decided that the conditions could never be more favorable. He had the mare rubbed down carefully, and when she came out she looked less nervous than usual. None of the usual trials were needed, for on the first attempt Marvin nodded and was off. The mare made great time, going the first quarter in 31½ seconds. Nothing could exceed the beauty of her pace. She moved like a machine and Marvin sat like a statue. The same even, beautiful pace was maintained to the half, which all timed at 1:04 flat.

When this was announced it looked bright for breaking the record. At the half the flying mare was met by the running mate, whose presence seemed to encourage her and she passed the three-quarter pole in 1:37. Then Marvin began to urge her, and with the runner doing his best to keep up she made the last quarter the fastest of the mile. As she rushed down the stretch the men who were holding watches on the great test said, "She'll break the record," and they were right, for when the great young mare passed under the wire hundreds of watches clicked as they stopped at 2:08½, half a second better than the record held for so many years by Maud S., who is also owned by Robert Bonner, the proud owner of the present queen of the turf.

A Strange Death at Hartford.

Grover Fielden, a farmer near Buford, a village in Ohio county, had a tooth extracted a few days ago, which caused an abscess. He continued to attend to business until Thursday afternoon, when he went to the house and said to his wife that he was suffering so he would be compelled to lie down. Having done this, his wife left the room, but soon heard him making a peculiar noise, and went to see what was the matter. When she reached the bedside she found him lying as if asleep. Failing to arouse him she called to a neighbor passing by, but he, too, failed to arouse him from his apparent slumber. He never awoke again. It is thought that he died of suffocation or strangulation, caused by the abscess.

Hal Pointer and Direct at Nashville.

At the Cumberland Park track, Oct. 21, Hal Pointer suffered defeat in three straight heats, the matchless California pacer, Direct, showing him his heels with ease. The time of the second heat was the best ever made in a race in harness, lowering Pointer's record half a second. Neither broke in either heat, and moved like clock work all the way around, Direct leading nearly all the way. The quarters were: First Heat—323, 1:05½; 1:38½, 2:10; second heat—321, 1:04½; 1:36½, 2:09½; third heat—321, 1:05½; 1:38½, 2:11. Hal Pointer is a Tennessee horse, and sold as a big favorite in the pools, on the first heat selling for $100 against $35 for Direct.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Knocked From His Horse.

William Craft, ex-county surveyor of Magoffin county, was last week struck on the back of the head with a rock thrown by Wiley Adams, and he is not expected to live. Mr. Craft was on his horse at the time, and received additional injuries in falling. He is an old man, having passed his three score and ten years, and it is thought his wounds will prove fatal. Adams was indicted at this term of the Magoffin circuit court for selling a school of which he was trustee, and he accused Craft of being instrumental in securing the indictment. Craft admitted that he was, and the blow followed. Adams had not been arrested at last accounts.

Two more world's records were broken on the Stockton track last week. A Pao Alto yearling, Bell Bird, driven by Marvin, went against her record of 2:27½ and made the mile in 2:26½. Her quarters were 27½, 1:14; 1:51 and 2:26½. She did not make a skip in the mile.

Marvin then drove Arion, by Electrion, against his record of 2:15½, and made the mile without a skip, finishing strong in 2:14. Arion is a yearling.

Easel Evolutions.

The National Farmers congress convenes at Sedalia, Mo., November 10. This assembly will consist principally of representatives from all parts of the United States. These representatives are selected and appointed by the Governor, two from each Congressional district, and in selecting them the aim is to get men of intelligence who know what a farmer is and what he needs, and are themselves successful farmers and do not look cross-eyed at others who have been successful in the various vocations around them, but by economy and industry seek to promote their own interest without antagonizing other industries of the country, and in pursuance of the foregoing Governor Brown in his wisdom has appointed J. M. Pieratt as one of two representatives from this, the Tenth, Congressional district. This action of Governor Brown will elicit the highest compliments from all who are acquainted with Mr. Pieratt for a suitable person couldn't have been selected. (I should have stated that these representatives bear their own expenses, which shows that they are willing to sacrifice both time and money for the class they represent.)
